It will be published by the American Missionary Association, monthly, in ten numbers, July and August being omitted.

The field represented in the mission work of this Association is increasingly urgent and important, and the necessity for larger support is apparent.

WANTS.

1. A steady INCREASE of income to keep pace with the imperative demand of work. This increase can be reached only by regular and larger contributions from the churches, the feeble as well as the strong.

2. ADDITIONAL BUILDINGS for our educational institutions, are needed to receive the constantly increasing number of students; MEETING HOUSES for the new churches we are organizing; MORE MINISTERS, educated and devoted, for these churches.

3. FUNDS FOR INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENTS—to purchase implements for agricultural training; to erect shops and furnish tools and materials for instruction and use in the mechanical arts, for carpenters, blacksmiths, tinmen, harness and shoemakers; and to supply the girls' industrial rooms.

4. Our work in Porto Rico calls for a school building at Santurce. It is necessary to successful work.

"THE SUMMER IS ENDED."

IN OUR MISSIONARY SCHOOL LIFE three seasons stand for steady work ; for earnest, patient giving out to others the best that is in the teacher's mind and heart. By the time that the summer comes, teachers know full well the wear and tear of their service, and the season is welcome. It brings with it an invitation to the open air, a bidding to turn aside and change the course of thought for the sake of elasticity and renewal. It is a receptive season, to gather new power and "to lay up a good foundation against the time to come" of vigor, physical and mental. As the procession of the seasons is a prophecy, a preparation and promise of the harvests to follow, so the teacher's interpretation of it is future opportunity and the promise of larger service.

Now when the days have passed which have flooded the forests and the fields with splendor and have made all life happier with their brilliance and beauty, we trust that the hundreds of our teachers who return to their work, will carry with them the invigoration which has come from the free air, and the cheer and courage which communion with nature brings to those who know how to pick out and pick up the truth and love of God in the glory which the world puts on.

With the autumn days when hills and valleys clothe themselves in brown, and the reapers gather to harvest their sheaves, our teachers with new strength gladly seek their fields again to reap the harvests waiting for them. "The summer is ended." "Lift up your eyes and look upon the fields. The harvest indeed is plenteous."

In their exacting duties may our teachers carry through the seasons before them the blessings of the summer which "is ended."

TO THE PASTORS OF OUR CHURCHES we likewise send our greetings. If in the variety of missionary work they do not experience to the same degree the demand for cessations and have not been able to turn aside from their fields, lest the good seed sown with care should be choked with the ever up-springing weeds and brambles, they have with them the wisdom of the Book of Proverbs, "He that gathereth in the summer is a wise son." Those who are called to preach the word "in season and out of season," may find every season a glad harvest time.

Sixtieth Annual Meeting.

Oberlin College and the First and Second Congregational Churches have cordially joined in inviting the members of the Sixtieth Annual Meeting of the American Missionary Association to meet in Oberlin on October 23rd-25th, next. Delegates from contributing churches, state associations and local conferences are cordially invited to the hospitality of the homes and churches of this delightful college town.

The names of the Chairmen of the various committees appear on the outside cover of this magazine. Correspondence should be entered upon promptly by those who are planning to be present at this meeting. It is hoped that every state association and each local conference have already elected delegates, as the Annual Meeting of this Association is purely a representative body composed of delegates and life members from the churches. The contributing churches are urged to elect the two delegates to which each church is entitled as early as possible and send their names to the Chairman of the Entertainment Committee at Oberlin.

There are many interesting and some unique features of this Sixtieth Annual Meeting which are worthy of special mention.

Organ Composition. Prof. Geo. W. Andrews, Mus. Doc., will render on the organ in Warner Hall an original composition dedicated to the American Missionary Association, on Wednesday evening, October 24th. It will be a unique musical treat.

Sixty Years and Beyond. Thursday morning will be given especially to the historical review of sixty eventful years constituting the life of the American Missionary Association. The Secretarial Paper by James W. Cooper, D. D., and addresses by distinguished speakers reviewing the work of the Association on the Problems of the Reservation, among the Indians; of Emancipation, both white and black; and of Expansion, reaching the new island territories, will furnish a session of peculiar interest.

Different races among whom this Association has planted its missions, churches and educational institutions, will be represented by some of their most distinguished leaders.

The financial condition and needs of the Association will receive careful attention. That the income for this great and rapidly growing work which falls upon the treasury of the American Missionary Association, and which will be presented at this meeting, should be largely increased is more evident than ever before. It is to be hoped that this Sixtieth Annual Meeting will enter upon wise and wholesome plans for the increase of the contributions to this work during the coming year. The Annual Meeting is the fulcrum by means of which we lift the great burdens of the work and its financial support. That the debt remaining at the close of this fiscal year may be entirely wiped out and the income of the Association sufficiently reinforced to meet the imperative demands upon the treasury before January 1, 1907, is surely a possible outcome of this great gathering, the Sixtieth Annual Meeting of the American Missionary Association.

A LAYMAN'S RESPONSIBILITY.

The layman in the church has far more responsibility than in his modesty he sometimes appreciates. He does much toward determining the quality of the pastor and the character of the pulpit message. His approval or disapproval are important elements in the success of the ministry.

But in missionary matters the layman's responsibility is still greater. His business judgment and experience are thoroughly esteemed by his fellow church members and the committees and officers of these societies. His opinions on missionary administration and work have weight. Generally his circumstances are such that he can largely discount the gifts of the pastor in his benevolences. All these facts and many others add to the layman's responsibility.

But special circumstances emphasize this responsibility. Just now, near the close of the fiscal year of the American Missionary Association, when every effort is being made to meet the obligations of the year so as not disastrously to sacrifice the interests of this great work, the layman has a peculiar financial responsibility for prompt and generous contributions. We gladly acknowledge the gifts of individuals who in the past have helped in times of peculiar stress and need. We appeal now to you as a layman asking a special gift during the closing month of this fiscal year. Will not you who read this appeal send a generous check to the Treasurer, H. W. Hubbard, at the New York office of the American Missionary Association, 287 Fourth Avenue?

HOW SHALL THE BOOKS OF THE A. M. A. CLOSE?

Surely they must not close with an increased debt upon this current year which ends September 30, 1906. This would indeed be a calamity. The debt reported last year was $89,254.07. Radical curtailment was made in mission fields but especially in administrative expenses in order to come within the estimated income of the year. Twenty-five per cent. advance in the gifts from churches, Sunday-schools, woman's organizations, young people's societies and individuals seemed only a reasonable expectation. The increase has not reached twenty-five per cent., but there has been some gain. Surely the friends of this great work would not have the year close with an additional debt.

How may a Debt be Avoided?

First, by every church which has not contributed sending in a collection before September 30th. Has your church contributed?

Second, responses from Sunday schools and Endeavor Societies to the work in behalf of the needier boys and girls and youth in our land will help, especially if sent at once.

Third, many individuals have considered this matter during the year and are almost ready to send a check for a considerable amount to meet the pressing needs of the Association. Promptness in remitting these individual gifts will meet the present necessity and make possible the progress of this vast and important work.

Will not you who read this appeal respond at once along the line of your responsibility?

AS TO THE CHURCH COLLECTION.

Has a collection been taken for the American Missionary Association in your church this year? If so, did it reach the conservative estimate of the increase needed in order to meet the wants of this rapidly growing work? Was it twenty-five per cent. in excess of your collection last year? If not, will you not supplement it before September 30th, the close of our fiscal year?

Has no collection been taken in your church for the work of the American Missionary Association this year? Will you not see to it, brother pastor, at once, that such a collection be taken and remitted to the treasurer of the Association before September 30th? The demand in behalf of the millions of our belated and needy fellow citizens in the South and West and in the Island Territories of the Atlantic and Pacific is imperative. Is your church using the American Missionary Association to the utmost for their spiritual, intellectual and physical regeneration and the maintenance of a safe and wholesome government in our land?

The A. B. C. F. M. In the death of the Rev. Dr. Judson Smith, which occurred June 29, 1906, for twenty-two years Corresponding Secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, all who are engaged in missionary service realize that it is common affliction. The officers of the American Missionary Association, in behalf of their society, express their sincere sympathy to the American Board in the loss of one so highly useful and so justly honored.

WE ARE PLEASED to announce the appointment of Prof. Geo. A. Hubbell, Ph.D., as principal of Highland Normal College at Williamsburg, Ky. Dr. Hubbell is a Ph.D. of Columbia University, and after having held a professorship in Antioch College and the vice-presidency of Berea College, accepts the presidency at Williamsburg. We welcome this educator, already experienced, although in the prime of life, and we look forward to years of great usefulness in this institution among the hills of Kentucky.

WE CONGRATULATE also Tillotson College in Austin, Texas, upon the appointment of Prof. Isaac M. Agard, Ph.D., as president. Dr. Agard is a graduate of Amherst College, and took his doctorate cum laude at Wooster University. He has held prominent positions as principal of high schools in Massachusetts, and has been Superintendent of Schools in Connecticut for eighteen years. Dr. Agard was a classmate in college of Dr. Nehemiah Boynton of Brooklyn. Tillotson College has done a noble work in the past and we look forward to a larger future under the new president.

THE SECOND CONFERENCE of Congregational Workers among the colored people of the South will be held at the Second Congregational Church, Memphis, Tenn., September 20-24, 1906. A large attendance of A. M. A. pastors and teachers is anticipated. The First Conference was held at Atlanta, Ga., September, 1903.

PORTO RICO.

When, in 1898, the American troops landed in Porto Rico, there were 25,000 children, in a population of 853,000, in the schools. Of these schools one-half were public, and the other half were parochial or private schools. We have been in Porto Rico six years; and the last report shows 70,000 children in the public schools. To this number must be added the pupils of parochial, mission and private schools, so that it is probably safe to say that to-day 100,000 children in Porto Rico are receiving school instruction as against 25,000 six years ago. But, gratifying as this is, it is not a point at which we may rest satisfied, for the reason that there are 350,000 children of school age now without any educational facilities.

The great need of a permanent school building and an improved Teachers' Home in Santurce, Porto Rico, is, we hope and expect, soon to be met in the fulfilment of plans now in hand. The work there has not been small, but with adequate conditions the good influences will be greatly extended.

Churches in Porto Rico.

Previous to our acquisition the Roman Catholic Church was supreme and remains the leading organization. Besides the Cathedral in San Juan, there are eighty-eight parishes in the Island, with twenty-three priests in San Juan and 120 in the island. Also thirteen religious communities and six charity asylums and schools. During the year the Roman Catholic Bishop "confirmed" 90,000 children and adults. The only Protestant church prior to American occupation was an Episcopal church in Ponce. Since then the Baptists have built nine churches and now have churches and stations in twenty-five towns and villages. The Presbyterian, Methodist and other denominations have also been active. The various Protestant churches and missions are: Baptist, 25; Methodist, 80; Presbyterian, 66; Episcopal, 5; Congregationalist, 8. In addition, two of the smaller denominations each maintain an orphan asylum, and at San Juan the Presbyterians have the best equipped hospital on the Island, with a medical missionary on the west end of the Island regularly visiting six towns.

FISK UNIVERSITY COMMENCEMENT.

BY REV. J. G. MERRILL, PRESIDENT.

The Forty-first annual commencement at Fisk was noted for the fact that the University sent out the largest college class in its history, probably the largest college class of Negroes in the history of the world. Twenty received the degree of Bachelor of Arts and three of Bachelor of Science. Eleven received Normal diplomas, one each was graduated from the Departments of Music and Theology.

Four anniversaries antedated Commencement week, those of the Glee Club, the Literary Societies, the Departments of Music and Theology. President Merrill gave the Baccalaureate on "Follow Me," as expressing the ethics of the twentieth century. Professor Kelly Miller, of Howard University, on Sunday evening, surveyed the destiny of the American Negro.

The anniversaries of the Alumni Association were peculiarly enthusiastic. They reported the noble sum of $1,100 raised for the Library Endowment Fund, and voted to make this $3,000 before the year should close. With such a beginning it is hoped that the friends of Fisk will see to it that the $20,000 is raised which will secure Mr. Carnegie's gift for a library building. Two addresses before the Alumni were made on Monday evening by attorney J. L. Neil, '89, and by the wife of Dr. H. H. Proctor, '90.

The great audience of the week is on "Normal night." The class was this year small. Ten were graduated. The normal course for a few years has been made more strenuous and only the fittest of the large numbers who begin end the course. Commencement day was ushered in with the usual large concourse in attendance. Five young people, two chosen by the class and three by the Faculty, gave orations, and the Rev. E. O. Mead, Ohio representative of the A. M. A., was the orator of the occasion. In "Life's Call and Answer," he found an inspiring note that made his address one of the best deliverances of such occasions.

There were the usual social attractions of the season. The class-day exercises, with its history, prophecy, poem, burning of books and planting of the class tree. Added to these was the alumni dinner with its after dinner speeches by trustees, and parents of the graduating class and distinguished guests, interspersed with songs from the various clubs and by the student body. The music of Fisk Commencement, it goes without saying, is one of its greatest attractions.

A marked feature of this year was the laying of the corner-stone of the new building for the Department of Applied Science. The exercises were held just before the sun went down on Friday evening. The address was given by W. A. Crosthwait, '87, a successful attorney in Nashville. Dean Wright filled the box with documents, Dr. Brodie led in prayer and the President laid the corner-stone.

This movement, made possible by the benefaction of the Slater Fund, marks an epoch in the life of Fisk. It is an attempt of Fisk as a college to correlate its work with the industrial features of modern educational life. There is no desire or intention to do the work so admirably done by Hampton and Tuskegee. It does not expect to make farmers, carpenters, masons, laundrywomen, dressmakers, of its college graduates. But it does hope to give to its college students the cultural value of manual training, and to fit them to teach the Industrial teachers of the South, and to make of the minister, doctor, pharmacist, dentist, business man, farmer, housewife, and leading citizens of the community generally, those who by their knowledge of the underlying principles of chemistry and physics as applied to domestic economy, agriculture, and the handicrafts, can be of service to the people whom they are to serve as leaders. It is an unexplored field so far as the schools of our order are concerned. We can but hope that it will add greatly to the usefulness of the University which always has stood and always intends to stand for the highest education possible for the Negro, a type of education which may have been thought chimerical in bygone days, but which the economical and social development of the South has made an absolute necessity.

COMMENCEMENT AT TOUGALOO UNIVERSITY.

Tougaloo University was happy in the presence at its Commencement of Rev. Doctor Dan Freeman Bradley, of Cleveland, Ohio. We are permitted to give an excerpt from a discourse preached to his church on his return. We wish we could publish the discourse entire.

My immediate errand in Mississippi was to speak at the Commencement of Tougaloo University, a school for Negroes, established by the American Missionary Association in 1868. Tougaloo is one of a dozen such schools as we Congregationalists have maintained in the South. It has a dozen buildings, a chapel, recitation buildings, dormitories for women and for men, a shop where woodwork is taught, a shop where ironwork is taught, including designing and moulding, a hospital where women are trained to become nurses, a school of music, a cooking school, and a school for the learning of dressmaking, a farm of 400 acres with cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, where young men are taught agriculture and animal husbandry. I picked ripe peaches, plums, strawberries and blackberries from the orchard. I saw the straight rows of corn and cotton coming out of the well-tilled soil—and saw the clean-kept garden; roses, magnolias pomegranate, and honeysuckle blossoms filled the air with perfume. The great oak trees with the long-haired moss, the gum tree and persimmon, stood in the spacious grove. I saw the girls going to the dining hall in their neat, white shirt-waists and blue serge skirts, all of which had been made in the school by the girls themselves. The young men stood erect, with clean shoes and clean collars, and were politer than similar young men at Northern colleges. I saw a group of them setting up an iron gate which they had themselves designed and wrought, handsome enough for any college gateway. I saw a three-story brick building which they had just constructed under the supervision of a New England teacher. A Louisiana lumber company had sent for fifty of these young men to work at good wages in vacation. I saw the chairs, tables, pillows, and fancy work they had made and put on exhibition.

Then I heard six of them, three men and three women, black for the most part—though one was a quadroon—I heard them deliver orations. The grammar was faultless, the manner was easy, the matter was well thought out, and every speech was patriotic and hopeful. They talked just as the graduates of Lincoln High School would talk.

I heard them give a concert, vocal and instrumental. There was not a coon song or score of ragtime on the program, but they rendered Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Grieg, Brahms, Liszt and Gounod, and the chorus of seventy voices sang with accuracy and power. Four girls at two pianos rendered a symphony from Raff, to my mind as well as it could be rendered.

There were 430 of these scholars, and their fathers and mothers and grandparents had come for many miles in wagons and on the cars to see them and hear them, and a Negro audience filled the church to hear the Commencement address which I delivered at twelve o'clock noon. Prominent white men and colored men occupied the platform and every seat was taken. I spoke for an hour, the best I could give them. They had been there already two hours, and the day was moderately warm. Nobody left the house during my address, and they all succeeded in keeping awake out of courtesy to the speaker and applauded him in decent and civilized fashion at the close. Everything about the occasion was dignified, sane, unsensational and sincere. On every hand there was evidence of a deep but quiet religious feeling, a trust in God, a hope in Christ, a desire for service and usefulness and love of country—not a note of hate or malice was to be heard, but a deep gratitude of joy that God was doing something for the colored man in these schools which would make him worthy of his citizenship.

I was proud of the institution, I was glad that we Congregationalists had made it possible by sending down into the Black Belt such a man as President Woodworth and his noble and beautiful wife, to live among these people for seventeen years, and “wearing the white flower of a blameless life,” to lift these black people steadily, patiently but certainly and permanently into a worthy manhood and womanhood. I never felt more hopeful about our country and this, its grave problem, no more sure that Jesus Christ will at length triumph over the ugliest of human passions, namely, race prejudice, than since I went to Tougaloo. And I come back to you with this report of your own work in the “Sunny Southland,” which the Northern tourist does not often see, and the men about Southern hotels do not often speak of; but a work of which all intelligent and patriotic men of the South say, “there is none better.” And money in there, goes far in the persons of these Christian young blacks into all the South to render its uncounted and immeasurable service.

I feel that in the solution of this great task no problem ever could be regarded as hopeless, no class or race of men ever set as beyond the reach of the uplifting gospel of Jesus Christ. I felt that every man or woman who had contributed these forty years to the work of the A. M. A., as you have in Pilgrim Church, would some day have the satisfaction of knowing that the money was well spent and the sacrifice well made, for has not the Master himself said “Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these, ye did it unto me.”

COMMENCEMENT AT TALLADEGA COLLEGE, TALLADEGA, ALABAMA.

BY PRESIDENT NYCE.

The thirty-ninth annual Commencement at Talladega was the most successful in the history of the college and marked the close of a profitable year. The Senior Preparatory Exhibition was the first exercise of Commencement week, this year the class numbered six, all belonging to the scientific course.

One evening of Commencement week is given to the public exhibition of several students' literary societies. Representatives from these organizations won the intercollegiate debate from Atlanta Baptist College.

"People's Day" at Talladega always shows the close touch the college has with the surrounding country. Hundreds of farmers drive for miles to spend this day on the college grounds, inspecting the college plant, and discussing such topics as fertilizers, and how to use them, the seed we plant, the need of testing for vitality before planting, the prospect for our public schools, our homes and responsibilities.

The college is old enough to have sent out into the South hundreds who are in every walk of life, and Talladega is strong in its alumni. This year the alumni have formed clubs in several cities; these, aside from working for the general interests of the college, have started a movement for a Theological Hall, which is to bear the name of "The Andrews Theological Hall," in recognition of the service of the Rev. G. W. Andrews, D. D., who has given thirty-two years to the theological department, of which he is the Dean. Great enthusiasm is felt in this movement. Eight thousand dollars have already been subscribed. It is hoped that the entire amount necessary to build the Hall will soon be in hand.

The musical department of Talladega has had a special development during the last few years. The Coleridge-Taylor Musical Society gave this year at Commencement "Hiawatha," by a chorus of seventy-five voices. It reflected great credit upon the work of the department.

President Nyce preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class. His subject was "New Beginnings." In the evening the annual missionary sermon was preached by the Rev. J. R. McLean, of the Theological class of '84.

Two hundred and fifty persons sat down at the alumni dinner, and the alumni who spoke were strong in their devotion to the college. Dr. Booker T. Washington, with a party accompanying him, was present at the dinner, and made a very powerful appeal for loyalty on the part of the alumni to their Alma Mater, and later in the day addressed a large audience in the DeForest Chapel, holding intensely interested the audience for an hour and a half. Many white people of the town were present and were not less pleased than the students and others. The address emphasized the necessity for the Negro to put brains into his work, and deprecated the value of any education which was not used in service for the betterment of conditions and the uplift of the people. He spoke emphatically also for the higher education, for the leaders of the race, and paid a beautiful tribute to the work which Talladega has done through the years, recognizing the debt which such schools as Tuskegee owe to the institutions for higher education in furnishing them well prepared teachers.

The past year at Talladega has been one of growth. Many thousands of dollars have been spent in material improvements; an extensive water and sewer system has been completed and additions made to the steam-heating system. Steel stacks are being placed in the handsome new Library Building. Electrical power has been installed in the Mechanic Arts Building and about $5,000 worth of wood turning, iron working and printing machinery has been put in operation. The college buildings are being provided with electric lights.

Applications for entrance next year indicate that the college will be again overcrowded, emphasizing anew the need for larger dormitory accommodation.

AVERY INSTITUTE, CHARLESTON, S. C.—FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

MISS MATTIE MARSH, TEACHER.

The celebration of the Fortieth Anniversary of Avery Institute and the Twentieth of its Principal, Professor Holmes, attracted much attention in Charleston, especially among the people for whom it was organized. Dr. Grimke may be assured that the A. M. A. will always "stand squarely."

This year, which marked the fortieth anniversary of Avery Institute was likewise the sixtieth of the American Missionary Association. It was also the twentieth of the Principalship of Prof. Holmes. All of these facts had recognition in the program.

The exercises began on Sunday forenoon, June 17th, when President Merrill, of Fisk University, preached upon "Moses as a Leader." Over a thousand people assembled in the afternoon to hear the baccalaureate discourse by Rev. Francis Grimke, D.D., of Washington, D. C. Dr. Grimke was formerly of Charleston and remembered the stirring times when the Union troops took possession of the city. He recalled the beginnings of this school in the heart of secession, under General Saxton. The very able discourse justified the high esteem and honor which Dr. Grimke holds among men of culture. Dr. Grimke expressed his very high appreciation of the great Association under whose auspices this work is carried on. He said: "Of all the organizations doing work among our people, the AMERICAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION, judged by what it has done, and by the noble spirit which has always animated it, is entitled to the very first place. During all these years it has never swerved a hair's breadth from the great principles of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. More than any other organization it has stood squarely and uncompromisingly upon Christian principles."

Class Day Exercises, June 18th, at four o'clock, were attended by an audience even larger than that of Sunday. The school assembled in the basement of the church, and a few minutes before four o'clock marched into the church and up the aisle to their places, singing the processional, "March of the Guard," by Geibel. To see one hundred and seventy high school pupils in perfect order march with twenty-seven seniors last, was a pleasing sight to our guests as well as to the thousands who assemble every year to witness the same exercises.

The real anniversary was commencement day, June 19th. An hour before the time, hundreds of people were waiting to be admitted into this vast church. It was built especially for the colored people before the war with the provision that white people could occupy the galleries. The front of the church back of the pulpit was decorated with a great United States flag, over which hung the pictures of some of the men dear to Avery. Mr. Avery, of Pittsburgh, who gave the money for the building, Dr. Cardozo, Mr. Farnham and Mr. Warren, who had been principals of the school, Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln. Palms and potted plants, the shield, the emblem of the school, the silk flag of the school and ivy twined in masses of green, completed the decorations.

Miss Geneva Burroughs' oration upon "The Friends of Freedom," received much praise, both for the research and thought shown in the production itself as well as for the skill and grace with which it was delivered. She told of Garrison, Phillips and the other Abolitionists, recounted the story of the Amistad captives who were stranded on the Connecticut shore, whose case was taken into the Supreme Court by great lawyers of that day, among whom was John Quincy Adams, and how this finally resulted in the mission of the American Missionary Association.

The speaker of the day, Prof. Kelly Miller, was greeted with rousing applause. His race is justly proud of him. "The Negro," he said, "had to fight his way amidst doubt, denial, ridicule and contempt." He quoted Calhoun as once saying, "If I could find a Negro who could master the Greek syntax, I would believe that the Negro has a soul and is capable of receiving an education." He said he would "like to have him, buried as he is in Charleston, come to life to-day and see what the Negro had already accomplished."

Marie Mayers gave the valedictory with a brief history of the school. A thousand pupils attended this school at its beginning, and there were twenty teachers. Dr. Cardozo, who afterwards was called to be Secretary of State of South Carolina, was the first principal. The school sessions were in the Military Hall in Charleston until 1868, when the present building, Avery, was opened. The total number of graduates are five hundred and forty-nine, three hundred and sixty-six of whom have been graduated under Prof. Holmes' principalship. Thousands have studied here who have not been graduated.

How I should like to tell you of the heart-stirring memories and reminiscences, of the breathless suspense which attended the reading of the letters, the shouts and applause that followed each one when finished, of the good wishes and goodwill and love expressed by people throughout the entire exercises for Prof. M. A. Holmes, whose devotion to the work has won for him their deepest sympathy, and the esteem of the people of Charleston. May his life be long spared to minister as he has done, and far away the time when his connection with the school must be severed. The Ministers' Union presented Prof. Holmes with a handsome gold-headed ebony walking stick as a token of their appreciation of his service and their regard.

The deep interest manifested at this time proved the love of the people for Avery Institute, and their loyalty and readiness to stand by its principal with a devotion that few principals experience.

GRANDVIEW NORMAL INSTITUTE, GRANDVIEW, TENN.

REV. A. V. WOODWORTH, PRINCIPAL.

Grandview's twenty-second year ended with this year's Commencement. After a successful administration of eight years' duration, Principal H. L. Hoyt resigned a year ago. During his decade of efficient service, the school had been built up substantially in material equipment and attendance, and had gained a high reputation among the churches of our order, as well as in the neighboring mountain regions of Middle and East Tennessee. The first year under the new principal, Rev. A. V. Woodworth, has moved forward on the same general lines as before, and the school has not lost in favor nor in reputation.

One most encouraging feature of the year's work was an evangelistic endeavor during February and March, led by Rev. N. Kingsbury, now of Hydro, Oklahoma. Over forty members of the school professed conversion. The eagerness of the young Christians to win new converts, and the active participation by a large number in personal work, were really remarkable features. Easter Sunday at Grandview was a day of great rejoicing, when twenty-two united with the church, fifteen on confession of faith. Nine others of the recent converts had previously joined a neighboring Baptist church, and several others have joined their home churches.

The proposal to change the time of graduating exercises from evening to daytime, though favored by all the faculty, met with much local disfavor at first, mainly on account of inbred conservatism. The quietness and beauty of the Commencement season, however, and the peculiar fitness of all things concerned therewith, won many words of delight and commendation. It has been said that during the twenty-two years since the Grandview school was started, there has never been a stormy day for Commencement. This year was certainly no exception to the rule. Fairer day of greater comfort never dawned, even among these delightful hills of Tennessee, justly famous for fine weather, and healthful climate. The hills and woods of Grandview were in the prime of their beauty. May in Tennessee is like the June of our New England poets in perfection.

Assembly Hall was comfortably filled with an audience of four or five hundred interested friends of the school. They found the room beautifully decorated with royal purple and white, the class colors. The decorations were inexpensive, but had cost much careful planning, and a whole day of steady work by a willing corps of helpers. Such a scene of brightness and beauty in color, though visible but for one short day, and then with much regret destroyed, has an educative as well as an æsthetic value. The effect on the mind that has enjoyed its beauty is never lost, but abides even longer than the bright picture on the films of the memory.

The Commencement exercises were honored by the presence of the County Superintendent of schools, who presented to about twenty pupils entitled to them, State diplomas and certificates; with an inspiring speech which voiced the keen interest of a former student, and a warm friend of the school.

We have received the following pleasant greeting from Hawaii :

"The Hawaiian Evangelical Association assembled at its eighty-fourth annual meeting in Kawaiahao, the Cathedral Church of the historic Christian movement in these Islands, to the Executive Committee of the American Missionary Association sendeth greeting:

"At the close of another year of effort for the Master we record with gratitude to God our great joy in view of one of the most successful annual campaigns that we have known for decades. Our churches have grown in number, in membership, and in the grace of giving. The various organizations for the culture of the young in the Christian life have increased in power. The blessing of the presence of the Holy Spirit has been with us and we believe we are on the eve of a still larger advance. In all this growth we thankfully acknowledge the coöperation of the AMERICAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION. Without your grant in aid, guaranteeing to us not only your own prayers and sympathy, but those of all the churches of the American mainland, the splendid forward step taken during the past two years would, humanly speaking, have been impossible. May God prosper you in your noble service for so many diverse peoples throughout our beloved Commonwealth. May He grant unto the churches that have helped us in our time of great need His most gracious blessings and enable them to accomplish even more for Him in the days to come. The very increase of the work here creates the demand for greater resources. May we not ask you to take this need with us to the Throne of Grace that God may help us to find the means for bearing this steadily enlarging responsibility. Wishing you grace, mercy and peace in our Lord Jesus Christ, we are gratefully and faithfully yours."

A NOBLE LIFE.

In the recent death of Rev. J. A. R. Rogers, D.D., at the advanced age of 78 years, there has passed away an uncommon man of heroic character, and of exceptional historical interest; one who held the oldest commission issued by the American Missionary Association.

In the early history of the Association what was called the "Home Department" embraced two distinct fields, the West and the South.

The missions in the slave states—Missouri, North Carolina and Kentucky—had the distinction of beginning the first decided efforts to organize churches and schools in the South on an avowedly anti-slavery basis. The pioneer in this movement in Kentucky was Rev. John G. Fee, the son of a slaveholder, who was disinherited by his father on account of his anti-slavery principles. In the vigor of young manhood, of great faith and of great courage, he collected a church of non-slaveholders and applied to the American Missionary Association for a commission. He was gladly welcomed and his commission was dated October 10, 1848. For a time he was not disturbed, and several small churches in the hills of Kentucky were organized. It was not possible, however, in the exciting events which were hastening on the "irrepressible conflict" that the work for which he stood should go on unchallenged. Mobs broke in upon his preachings, threatened his life repeatedly, and handled him with great violence. It was about all a man's life was worth there at this time to be known to cherish anti-slavery principles even in silence, but Mr. Fee never knew the meaning of silence. He did understand and realize, however, the penalties of free speech. It was in these fiery days in 1857 when the whole country was in profound agitation, and his own section of it in intense excitement that Mr. Fee sent out his first appeal for a College in Berea, as calmly as if nothing had ever occurred to make it seem strange. Then and there during the reign of terror in 1857 he wrote: "Free churches and free schools can be sustained. We want teachers, not merely anti-slavery teachers, but Christian teachers who shall labor to redeem their pupils from all sin. We need a college here which shall be to Kentucky what Oberlin is to Ohio, an anti-slavery, anti-caste, anti-tobacco, anti-sectarian pious school, that will furnish the best possible facilities for those of small means who have energy of character that will lead them to work their way through this world. Is it practical? It is. Faith, persevering trust in God will overcome all difficulties. The place for the college is here in the interior of Kentucky."

For such a forlorn hope in the last of places, in the most hostile conditions, there was a providential young man whose faith could match that of Mr. Fee, whose courage was equally undaunted and whose sacrificial love for his fellow men, and zeal for a pure gospel burned as brightly as did that of the Kentucky pioneer of freedom. It called for the highest qualities of these characteristics for one to associate himself in such an enterprise in such a time and place with another who was looked upon as a disturber of the peace, and an enemy of the existing social order.

Mr. Rogers, then scarcely thirty years of age, was the man for the time. Born in Cornwall, Connecticut, and from Mayflower ancestry, he was prepared for Yale College, but his father having moved West, he entered Oberlin College, from which he was graduated in the class of 1850, and from the Theological Seminary in 1854. In 1858 he went to Berea, and in 1859 the school was opened with Mr. Rogers at its head. Previous to the opening, the question arose, "Shall colored children be admitted into the school room with white children?" The discussion was lively, and two sets of directors were put in nomination, but the anti-caste directors were elected by a majority of more than two to one, due, doubtless, to the steadfast position of the incoming principal, who announced his purpose, "Not to enter it unless it should be open to all." The school began with a good attendance and excellent prospects, but the next year brought the expulsion of all the missionaries of the Association from Kentucky and North Carolina, Principal Rogers with 35 others from Berea among the number.

After the war the school was reopened with Mr. Rogers again at its head, and from this time onward the stamp of his superior scholarship and wise direction did much to win for it a College Charter and recognition. Doubtless it owes more to him than to any other one man.

In 1869 when the first college class in the institution sustained by the Association was started, consisting of five students, all from Kentucky, Dr. Rogers declined the presidency, but remained as professor of Greek until 1878. He wrought a great work and lived to richly inherit the promises of great faith and fidelity.

Friendship Calendar. A "worth while" Christmas gift to carry greetings of sunshine and cheer to the far-away teachers and missionaries of our land, is the "FRIENDSHIP CALENDAR" published by the Friendship Calendar Co., New Britain, Ct. If it seems early to talk about 1907 Calendars in September, we may not forget that this month is one of the embers of the dying year and that it is well to take time by the forelock. It offers an opportunity to send 365 messages to absent friends and will interest those who love to interest friends. Doubtless our teachers, especially the lady teachers, would be gratified to receive the remembrances which this Calendar provides for from their friends—the churches.

THE SECOND gathering of the Negro Young People's Religious and Educational Congress was held in Convention Hall, Washington, D. C., the first week in August, and was attended by some three thousand delegates. The Congress aims to be, for the race, a sort of Federation of Churches, United Society of Christian Endeavor and National Educational Association all in one. The program was a comprehensive exhibition of the aspiration and achievements of the colored American all along the line. Its most heartening evidence was the men themselves. Sanity and cheerfulness dominated. Their wrongs and difficulties had not mastered their spirits. Instead, they were pervaded by a deep sense of growth from within in power and patience. No one could doubt the genuine leadership of the movers of the Congress, nor the developing capacity of the people for organization, for working in harness. It showed, statistically and visibly, unmistakable evidence of the Negro's rapid advance materially as well as intellectually. Best of all was the splendid outburst of foreign missionary enthusiasm for Africa, the motherland, the high sense of privilege pledging itself to service. All in all, as the Congress showed, the Negro is adding to good temper, leadership, to leadership wealth, to wealth culture, to culture consecration. What race can do more?

THE SIXTIETH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE American Missionary Association

To be held at OBERLIN, OHIO,

OCTOBER 23-24-25, 1906.

PRESIDENT AMORY H. BRADFORD, D.D., PRESIDING.

Annual Sermon preached by Rev. G. G. Atkins, D.D., Michigan.

Committees. General Committee—Pres. H. C. King, D.D., Chairman. Entertainment Committee—Mr. L. D. Harkness, Chairman. Transportation Committee—Sec. George M. Jones, Chairman. Finance Committee—Mr. H. B. Thurston, Chairman. Committee on Arrangements—Dr. H. G. Husted, Chairman. Reception Committee—Prof. F. F. Jewett. The Chairman of any of these Committees may be addressed Oberlin, Ohio.

Entertainment. The friends in Oberlin offer cordial entertainment to missionaries of the Association, officers, life members, invited speakers, pastors and delegates from the churches. Each delegate is requested to give his name in full and state to which of the invited classes he or she belongs. This information should be sent to the Chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

Transportation. Reduced rates on railroads on the certificate plan will be provided. Every one purchasing a ticket and paying full fare should ask from the agent from whom the ticket is purchased for the certificate which will entitle him to the reduction on the return ticket.

Membership. Life Members, delegates from contributing churches, state associations or local conferences constitute the membership of the Association. To this body the churches have committed the administration and immediate direction of the interests of this great mission field. It is a broad and representative body. Will not every contributing church elect delegates that the representation may be as general as possible? The Business Session for the election of committees and officers of the Association will be held Wednesday afternoon, October 24th, at 3.30 o'clock.

Place of Meeting. The First Congregational Church will be the place for gathering on Tuesday afternoon, October 23d. The Wednesday evening session will be held in Warner Hall. At this session an original composition for the organ, prepared by Prof. George W. Andrews, Mus. Doc., and dedicated to the American Missionary Association, will be rendered for the first time. It will furnish a rare musical treat, illustrating the progress and scope of the great missionary and educational movements of the A. M. A.

Educational and Industrial Exhibit. In the Chapel of the Second Congregational Church, there will be on exhibition samples of educational and industrial work from representative schools of the Association.

Jubilee Singers. The Quartet will be present from Fisk University and add greatly to the interest of the meetings.

The Congregational Churches and Oberlin College join in this cordial invitation to the constituents and friends of the American Missionary Association.
